- April 1: Summer and Fall programs

Virtual Cal Poly Exchanges

What is a Virtual Exchange?

- An excellent way to internationalize their students' education in meaningful, accessible, and innovative ways
- Can enhance the classes taught at Cal Poly
- Designed in collaboration with the International Center and a Service Provider

Questions? Contact Sara Otis at sotis@calpoly.edu

Ways to use virtual exchanges in the classroom

- classroom-to-classroom exchanges
- virtual guest lecturers, city tours, museum and other site visits
- hands-on activities or project-based collaboration
- language exchanges
- peer-to-peer learning opportunities
- cross-cultural activities
- collaboration with experts and industry leaders across borders and cultures

Cal Poly

Program Development Grants

- Intended for faculty seeking funding for travel in order to develop a proposal for a new Custom Cal Poly Global Program
- May fund visits to a single site or to multiple sites within one country or world region
- Open to faculty members who hold appropriate credentials to teach Cal Poly courses and who are in their second or higher year at Cal poly
- Limited number of grants of up to $3,000
- Recipients are expected to submit a report post travel and submit a program proposal in the next cycle

Cal Poly

Program Development Grants

Funding Priorities

- Countries/regions in which Cal Poly has little or no current programming
- Disciplines not currently represented by Cal Poly Global Programs
- Increased accessibility for students of limited economic means and in underrepresented populations
- Interdisciplinary programs that include GE coursework
- Documented matching funds

Next Steps

- ✓ Review current Cal Poly Global Programs
- ✓ Discuss with your department and/or college
- ✓ Contact staff in the International Center
(globalprograms@calpoly.edu)
